DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1, 5 and 7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Arai et al. [US 5,255,317] in view of Engel et al. [US 4,646,319].

Arai et al. discloses a circuit for a power line network [figure 1], comprising:

- a transformer having:

- a core;

- primary windings [11a, 11b]; and

- a secondary winding [11c].

- a coupling capacitor [12] connected at middle point between the primary windings and connected in series therebetween;

- a battery [14];

- current limiting resistances [13a, 13b] connected to the primary windings; and

- a transmitting/receiving circuit [figure 1] connected to the secondary winding.

Arai et al. discloses the instant claimed invention except for a gap in the core.

Engel et al. discloses a transformer [figure 1A] in a communication network [figure 1] comprising a magnetic core having a gap.

Art Unit: 2832

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skilled in the art at the time the invention was made to include a gap in the core structure of Arai et al., as suggested by Engel et al., for the purpose of controlling the magnetic flux.

Regarding claim 7, the specific inductance of the transformer would have been an obvious design consideration based on the intended applications/environments.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 2-4 and 6 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

- Jakab [US 4,982,426]; Deisch [US 3,781,483] and Person [US 3,627,952].
